

NEWS FROM Long Island Business NEWS

Where Business Gets Down to Business

Canon-Owned Firm Relocates To Melville

*Published: August 23, 2013
By David Winzelberg*

Just weeks after Canon USA officially opened its new headquarters in Melville, another Canon business has leased space nearby.

NT-ware USA, a U.S. subsidiary of a German technology company owned mostly by Canon Europe, has leased 4,205 square feet at 105 Maxess Road in Melville. The company is relocating from space it leased in Babylon.

NT-ware specializes in the creation, development and support of printing and scanning management software distributed by Canon. The company, which is 70-percent owned by Canon Europe, is headquartered in Bad Iburg, Germany, with subsidiaries in New York and Singapore.

Craig Weiss of landlord T. Weiss Realty arranged the lease in-house. Mitch Rarey of USI Real Estate Brokerage Services represented NT-ware in the lease negotiations.

“Canon USA’s relocation from Lake Success into Melville has afforded the Route 110 corridor with numerous benefits,” Weiss said. “Jobs have been created, existing municipal infrastructure has been updated, local supporting businesses have grown and firms that work closely with Canon, such as NT-ware, have relocated to Melville in order to remain in close proximity to Canon’s offices.”

Last month, Canon USA held a grand opening of its new 700,000-square-foot headquarters in Melville, where the company employs some 1,400 people.